Setting

Act 1:

The funeral for a princess, in a meadow, in the magical kingdom of Summerland.

Intermission:

10 minutes

Act 2:

A beautiful old Mansion called Wickland, in the magical kingdom of Fairyland in Kentucky.

Reception:

Please join the royal family for a reception to celebrate Princess Jolie's birthday.

Dramaturgy

I have always loved fairy tales and the magical elements that appear in the daily life of their characters. When writing this little play I made a chart of my favorite 10 fairytales and then narrowed it down to the 3 stories that had the most in common: Sleeping Beauty, Snow White, and the Frog Prince. The beautiful theme of true love and its transformative nature winds through them all, bringing hope and joy to even the unlikeliest recipients. It was an incredible amount of fun to mix them together and create this new work that celebrates the beauty of Wickland and the magic of make-believe.

Tiny Notes

Keep a listen out for the music in the show, it is mostly by a French composer called Camille Saint-Saëns who wrote music a very long time ago, right about the same time that Wickland was being built. Speaking of fancy French names... Pay attention to the silly sounding names of some of the characters, they have an important meaning in French!

Blanche Neige = Snow White

Valeur = Brave

Jolie = Pretty

Brie = A fancy French cheese that is often baked!

Auguste = Royal

Margaux = Fancy French Wine!

Larry = Just Larry, names are wierd sometimes.

There sure are a lot of French things in this play, aren't there? Many of the most famous fairytales came from the French writer Charles Perrault.

Katherine Scott
Writer/Designer/Director

Katherine grew up in southern California, performing in musicals and dramatic plays beginning in the third grade and continuing through a theater major at the University of Redlands. She studied classical theater performance at the Antaeus Theater Company in Los Angeles, and commercial and contemporary acting at South Coast Repertory. She designed sets, directed shows, and music-directed in the Orange County area, ranging from community theater to semi-professional shows. She took a long break from theater because of the complications of doing theater and having small children. It wasn't until she moved with her family to Bardstown that the exciting prospect of doing theater again seemed possible. She is so grateful to her husband, Kieran, for being a steadfast supporter and for handling everything on the homefront with their 4 children, while she runs off to rehearsal! She is also incredibly grateful to her children for providing the inspiration for the big personalities in the play! Thank you, Ginny, Jack, Shel, Lyda, and Erica for being muses. Totus mundus agit histrionem!
